The School Psychological Services

- The School Psychological Services provide free advice for school children, parents and teachers. In most cases it is the teacher who suggests a consultation with an educational psychologist.
- In Zurich and many other places also parents themselves may contact the Services directly. There is at least one such unit in every district of the canton of Zurich. Some towns and local authorities have their own School Psychological Services.
- The children who are referred to the Services may be experiencing attention deficits or learning difficulties, may not integrate easily into the class, or have other educational or emotional problems. While assessing a child, the educational psychologist will suggest possible ways of best helping a child.
- Some of the ways of helping a child need to be recommended by the educational psychologist, whilst others may be implemented by the schoolboard without such a recommendation. None of these measures will involve parents in any expense.
